Bio for Event Marketing

Kim Seeling Smith is an award-winning Australian keynote speaker, business futurist and AI strategist helping leaders build relevant, adaptable and AI-ready organizations. A former KPMG-trained CPA with a double major in Accounting and Computer Science, and recent executive study on AI at MIT Sloan, Kim brings a rare blend of commercial acumen, technical grounding and human insight to the AI conversation. Most AI speakers focus on the technology; Kim focuses on the people who have to use it, because that is where AI strategy succeeds or fails. She delivers live, bespoke AI demonstrations on stage and draws on research from 5,000+ exit interviews. Her keynotes help leaders understand what is changing, build confidence with AI, rethink the Future of Work, and develop the human capability required to stay valuable in a decade of radical change. Australia-based, speaks globally.
